After a year or more of experimentation and a lot of practice rocking his baby, David finally gave the Edo Rocker its stride, marrying Edo's hallmark cantilever construction with a broad, comfortable seat and cradling, concave back. The Edo Rocker is constructed entirely of solid wood, with no right angles and double-half-lap joints to secure the seat and back, making it remarkably sturdy and strong (no creaking!) with a minimum of fuss. Comfortable yet supremely modern, the Edo Rocker applies innovative physics to age-old technology, creating a chair that is graceful and versatile—and just right to really set your back into.
